The contestant securing the second highest votes will be considered in the subsequent draw of cards, provided there is vacancy in the candidate's zone at the time when the card is being pulled out by the Election Authority.

All panel candidates, irrespective of the fact that they have contested and secured maximum votes have to go through the second stage of election process i.e. draw of cards.

In case there is even 1 seat and 1 candidate has contested, this does not assure an automatic nomination. This is due to the constraint arising out of number of available seats per zone. (Maximum 7)

This process of "draw of cards" is being conducted to adhere to the principle of fair and natural justice as defined by the election rules. All panel candidates, irrespective of the fact that they have contested and secured maximum votes have to go through the second stage of election process i.e. draw of cards.

12.9 If there are no candidates for a notified panel/combined panel and if 20 members are not available/eligible/elected to the COA then that vacancy for that panel/combined panel will be declared as unreserved and will be filled up by the COA in due course in accordance with provisions of Articles.

12.10 In case only one valid nomination is received for any one vacancy, then there will be no election for that vacancy/post and the nominee will be declared as elected and the nominee declared unopposed & elected shall not go under draw of cards. Provided the vacancy is available in the respective zone after the election of Zonal Chairman.

12.14 In case of a dispute in the count of votes a candidate may make an application for a scrutiny & the application should be made to EC.

12.15 The Returning Officer shall maintain secrecy of the votes received. Only the Returning Officer or a person authorized by him in writing, and the candidate or a person authorized by him, shall be allowed to observe the process of scrutiny and counting of voting results at the office of GJC.

12.16 The person receiving the highest number of votes from each Panel / Zone will be declared as elected from the respective Panel / Zone.

12.18 The Returning Officer shall declare the election result stating the names of elected candidates from each Zone and Panel as per Election Rules of the year for the election of the Committee of Administration (COA).
